

Expanding Employment Pathways through Impact Hiring

While overall unemployment levels have decreased over the past several years, economic opportunity has remained out of reach for some—including large numbers of youth. As the labor market has tightened, competition for entry-level talent has increased among employers. These factors underpin the value of impact hiring: talent practices that create business advantage through hiring and developing individuals who often face barriers to economic opportunity.

The Innovation Labs offer pioneering companies an opportunity to test, learn and refine their hiring practices to support Opportunity Youth and other populations facing employment barriers in our communities. We provide professional development, expert guidance, and project management throughout the entire process to help ensure participating companies reach their goals and ultimately become leaders in what we call “Impact Hiring” by sharing their experiences through supported communications activities.
